

Orlando FSDO FAAST Team presents:

Glass Cockpits - What will I do when it fails?

With the growth of glass panel technology in GA airplanes, flight instructors have been forced to adapt their training to address the specific nuances and behavior of this equipment. In this scenario, our pilot is working on his IPC when the instructor throws a simple failure at him. Unfortunately, this simulated emergency quickly became a real one because the instructor lacked in-depth knowledge of the equipment. This scenario discussion will provide good lessons for all who fly with a glass cockpit, whether you're a pilot or a CFI/MEI. Come join us and share your experiences with glass cockpit failures and your ideas for continuing to fly the aircraft safely. If you don't fly with a glass panel cockpit, ask your colleague who has a glass panel to accompany you; there's something for both of you to learn.

Attending this WINGS Seminar will award you 1 Advanced Knowledge Credit toward your next phase/level of WINGS. This seminar will also be the IMC Club meeting for December; however, you do not have to be an IMC Club member to attend and receive WINGS credit.
